

10th Annual Future Music Forum Barcelona

Barcelona, Spain, 24th April 2019 – The Future Music Forum (FMF), Europe’s favourite boutique music conference announced the launch of its 10th edition today with a preview of what’s to come. The 10th Annual FMF will be held this September 11th-13th of September at the Estrella Damm Brewery in the Eixample district in Barcelona & the historic medieval convent of Sant Agusti in central Barcelona.

Confirmed keynote speakers include Mark Mulligan (Midia Research) Scott Cohen (Warner Music) Bill Bradford (Smule) and many more guests TBC.

Future Music Forum is a global 3-day music conference which includes industry speakers from around the world, with networking sessions, keynote presentations, panel discussions, workshops & live showcases from Europe’s up & coming bands.

For 2019, Future Music Forum are excited to announce three separate streams per day which include a dedicated Digital Content Creators, a Futures stream & a brand new stream dedicated to music & philanthropy.

This year we are delighted to announce day three will take place at the famous medieval Convent Sant Agusti for a much more interactive experience with installations, our writers camp with award winning “The Nucleus”, our 3rd edition of the Digital Start Up competition along with workshops with our event partners Microfusa & EUMES.

The 10th editon follows nine successful years, which have seen an array of music tech companies, entrepreneurs, musicians & music industry related executives descend on Barcelona for three days of lively discussion about where the music industry is heading . Participants have included Spotify, Soundcloud, Shazam, Beggarsgroup, 8Tracks, Sony, Warner Music and many many more.

The Future Music Forum Barcelona, September 11th-13th 2019